Dear Hiring Manager,

My name is Shaan Patel, and I am writing to express interest in qualtrics's internship program. My deep passion for emerging technologies and programming has driven me to start AI research at the University of Georgia, complete internships as a software developer at The Home Depot and Southern Company, and personally enrich myself with different tech stacks outside of my curriculum. I believe that my interests with how technology can innovate and globalize industries align seamlessly with your company's objectives and values.

I have strong interpersonal, programming, and organizational skills, and I believe my skills make me a great match for this job. My experience in computer science and the management information systems field spans several projects that have given me proficiency in building microservices, designing applications, and data manipulation. I strongly believe my problem-solving ability combined with my communication skills will help me be a great intern at qualtrics.

Qualtrics Commitment to fairness and respect resonates deeply with me, reflecting one of my core values: cultural representation within the workplace. The prospect of contributing to a mission-driven organization that shares my dedication is both inspiring and motivating.

I am eager to explore avenues for growth and development while contributing to the company's continued success.

Thank you in advance for your time and consideration I look forward to hear from you,

Shaan Mukesh Patel
